

Stages of psychological and pedagogical support for students with disabilities at HEI

At the stage of adaptation of freshmen to new conditions of life, it is important to provide them with help and support in understanding and accepting these conditions, and in correcting professional self-determination.

The stage of interiorization in the mode of psychological and pedagogical support includes assistance in the formation of a value attitude to the chosen direction of professional activity, the development of professionally significant qualities, and the development of the required competencies.

At the final stage of individualization is accompanied by a willingness to consciously, independently plan, adjust and implement the prospects of their professional development, a willingness to make a decision on continuing education or employment, skills are formed on the labor market.
